Subject line: First online business software for small enterprise applications now available

Press Release published by MOASE Solutions Deutschland GmbH on May 20, 2009

No more notes and paper puzzles

- The first comprehensive web-based operating software for small businesses, contractors and freelancers on the Internet
- Professional office organization saves time and money
- Application mirrors all business processes – it is the first of its kind for the smallest of companies

Large and medium sized companies have all relevant business data at their disposal at all times – it is constantly updated and maintained by customized software solutions. However, the more than 2.5 million self-employed and small business owners in the German-speaking region have yet to have access to any solutions they can afford. Effective today, this market gap will be closed by the integrated tikktakk.net web application.

This online platform is the first of its kind that gives even the smallest company with tiniest of budgets an option to keep an administrative eye on all work processes. Especially in today's economic environment, this is an essential survival tool. After all, in particular owners of small businesses do waste lots of time and money month after month because their offices are inefficiently organized. For instance because they forget to record hours worked and thus do not bill them either, or as a result of time consuming searches for receipts lost in the maze of impossible to manage paper chaos.

Thanks to tikktakk.net, small companies now have a tool at their disposal that records the hours worked and allocates them directly to customers and projects. A single click compiles and processes controlling, reporting, quotation and billing functions.

Unlike traditional office software, which requires the making of a one-time investment that may be considerable for such a program, users are charged only for the amount of memory capacity they intend to use. To be able to get a straight-forward and transparent overview of costs and capacities, billing is never based on MBs or GBs, but on points. Individual work steps, for instance the creation of a new project, have concrete defined point numbers assigned to them. The actually required memory space is largely contingent upon whether a self-employed customer who does not have any employees or a small company consisting of a team of up to five or a medium-sized company utilizes the tikktakk.net services. To accommodate all of these different needs, a variety of packages is available that offer customized scopes and contract terms.

This online application, which does not have to be installed on a local computer, but is managed directly on the Internet, is in congruence with the latest trends. A myriad of freeware programs is available on the Internet today under keywords such as Software as a Service (SaaS) or Cloud Computing. However, all of them come with the disadvantage that they are not compatible with each other. "tikktakk.net is the first integrated web application that combines the sub-functions of such island solutions. In other words, it is virtually an ERP program for the smallest of companies. Office chaos and paper mazes can now be banned to the distant past. Small companies can work more efficiently and gain a competitive edge,” comments Christian Farr, Managing Director of Moase Solutions Deutschland GmbH.

Users can access tikktakk.net from any Internet enabled device – including smart phones, PCs or Macs. The only prerequisite is the availability of Internet access. Given that the application is exclusively Internet-based, users do not incur any related costs for licenses, installation and updates, and that they would have to pay for conventional software uses.
